The Office of International Research and Cooperation was established in July 1992 for the purpose of enhancing the PRI's international cooperation activities, and renamed the International Cooperation Division through the organizational restructuring in May 2015.

The PRI's international cooperation activities include intellectual support for developing countries (e.g., the acceptance of trainees and dispatch of experts to support reforms in fields such as fiscal policy, tax policy and policy-based finance) and research exchanges with foreign research institutes (e.g., holding joint workshops and accepting foreign researchers who study Japan's fiscal and economic affairs). The PRI will contribute to further economic development in developing countries through these international cooperation activities.
